ON COLLINS • KIAMA

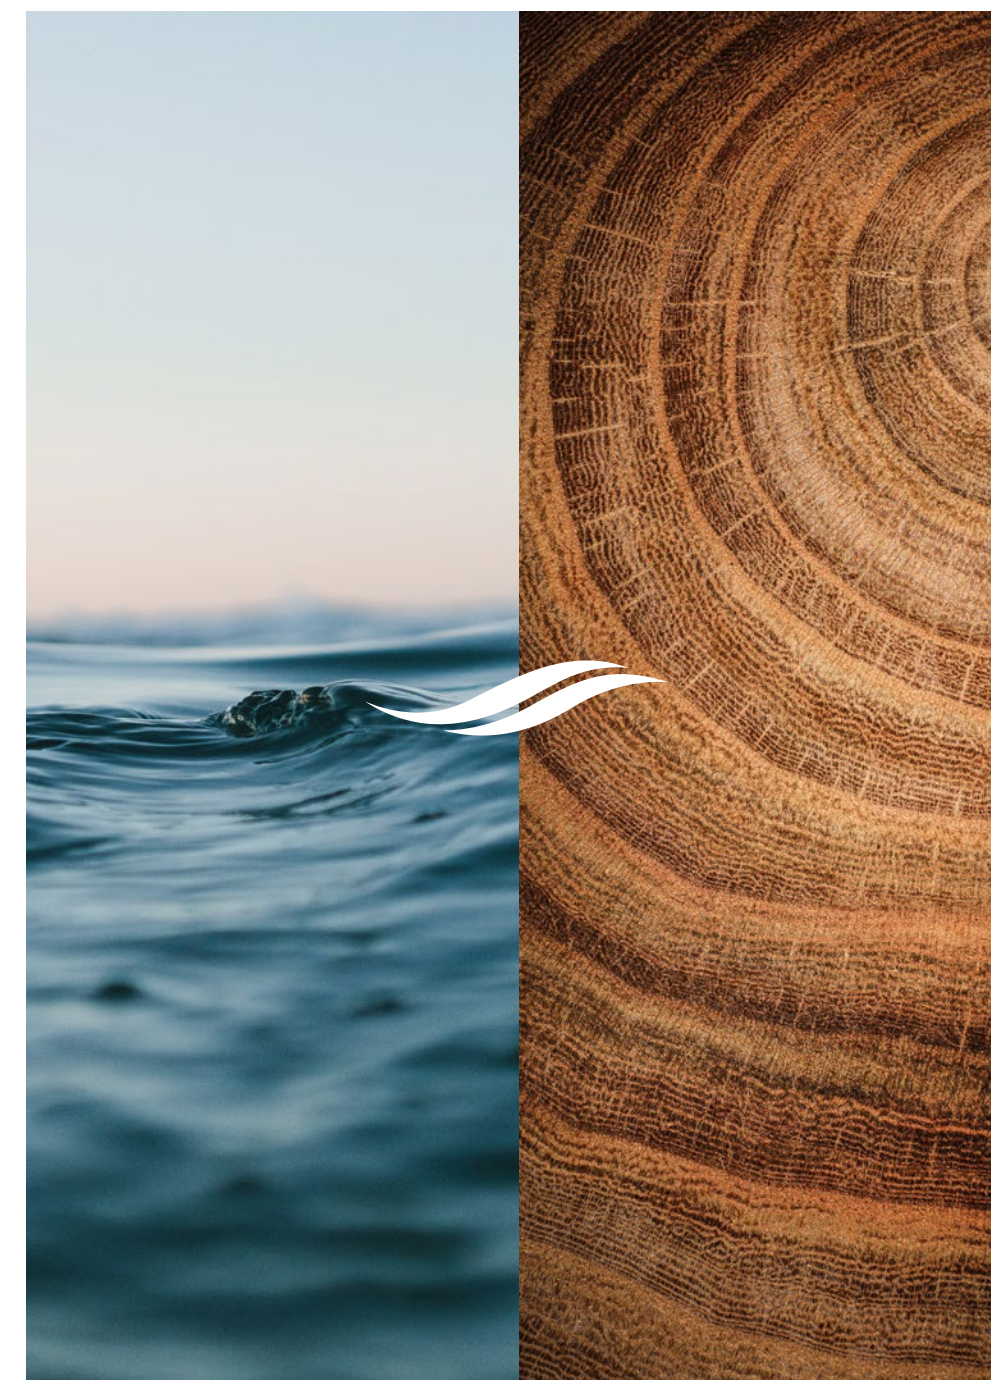

33 COLLINS STREET, KIAMA

Fresh Hope Communities acknowledges the Wodi Wodi people as the Traditional Custodians of this land and recognise their connection to land, culture and community. We pay our respects to their Elders past and present.

THE WAVES

Boundless and beckoning, the waves that meet the shore are full of life and mystery, invigorating, awaiting discovery and inviting wonder; never stagnant, they speak of a continual momentum, of hope always on the horizon.

THE TEXTURE

On the coastal fringe of Kiama, with a sweeping, undisrupted view of the South Pacific stands a Cedar tree; sentinel-like and stately, its roots go deep, nourished in the earth, refreshed by the sea air, it speaks to the longevity and unwavering strength of time past and time yet to come.

WELCOME TO YOUR BACKYARD

Long before Kiama became the jewel of the southern coast of New South Wales, the Traditional Custodians of this land, the Wodi Wodi people lived in harmony with the aged forests of towering Cedars that covered the landscape. Majestic, plentiful and highly prized, they drew in European settlers who began cutting these copper-red cedars for commercial use.

The early 1800s saw Kiama's Black Beach become a significant port for transporting the timber from the area, bound for the growing populations of places like the city of Sydney.

Though many associate the Norfolk Island Pine with Kiama's shores, there is possibly no other tree in the area that has such historical significance to Kiama than that of the Cedar tree, symbolising strength, longevity, endurance, and new growth.

With roots so deep in this community's history, it deserves a distinct place within our story.

Welcome to Cedar on Collins.
